

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to thank the following people for easing my passage in the preparation of this dissertation:

My steadfast husband, Brian, for his enduring love, for believing in me long after I'd lost belief in myself, and for sharing my wish to reach the goal of completing this task, but caring enough to love me even if I never achieved it. My sons, who have inspired me with their love and caring, even as they bore the brunt of my moods and absences. Thank you, Simon for your concerned, late night vigils. Thank you, Adam for saying, "you must do your thesis for you, Mommy". To both of you, for letting me teach you about critical pragmatism, and for pretending to care.

My supervisor, Professor Philip Harrison for intellectual guidance, for awakening a thirst for theory in me, for patient motivation, and for his good humour in my darkest hour – accepting cheesecake in lieu of a chapter. Thank you for the journey, Phil.

The officials, politicians, residents and representatives of Kathorus, as well as the Kathorus Project management team – all of whom gave me time and were generous in offering their insights and the rich details that afforded this analysis. Here I must single out Mike Morkel and Themba Maluleke for the many hours of interviews and conversations that we have held about the project over six years.

The professionals with whom I conducted several research and evaluation exercises on the Kathorus Special Integrated Presidential Project.

Melinda, for friendship, collegiality of work and the unqualified love that goes with being through it all together. Bonnie, for years of succour and unwavering trust. Tracey, who keeps the faith for me. Nasima, for sustenance and daily walks. Sarah, for generosity and a calming spirit. Tony, for showing me that I am bigger than this thesis.

Friends and colleagues who have buoyed me, taken up the slack I left in the wake of thesis anxiety and stress, added value to my thinking, fed me, ferried my children and survived years of unfinished business with me. I am particularly indebted to Melinda, Nasima, Nathalie, Kecia, Laura, Sarah, Tanya, Ndowa, Shireen, Stephen, Anne, Nasira, Sue, Tevia, Aly, Amanda, Caroline, Kate, Tanja, Claire and Tracey.

Dr. Karen Lazar, for astounding editing and insightful feedback at short notice. Dr. Kim Segel, for elevating the full stop, suppressing the passive voice and reminding me that 'done is good'. Professor Shireen Hassim, for close reading and generous advice. Professor John Forester and Professor Thaddeus Metz, for clarifying certain concepts and debates. Diane Stuart, for excellent attention to detail.

Mommy, for constant love and immeasurable sacrifice. Dad, for perspective and the will to strive. Hester, for a patient ear. Sonya, for love, laughs and sisterhood. Kobus, for wanting to read the thesis. Merle, for showing me the wood from the trees. Paul, for affection. Leon, for quiet understanding. Finally, Elisabeth Tshabalala – on whose shoulders I stand.
